A Special Examination Is Needed For Your Disability Claim

www.socialsecurity.gov

After you apply for Social Security or Supplemental Security Income disability benefits, sometimes you need to have special medical examinations or tests before we can decide whether you qualify.

The Disability Determination Services in your state is currently reviewing your disability claim. The state agency makes the disability decisions for us. The employees there need more information before they can decide if you are disabled under Social Security law. So, they are asking you to have a special exam or medical test that we will pay for. We also will pay for certain related travel expenses.

If a doctor who is not your regular doctor performs your exam or test, we can send a copy of the results of the exam or test to your doctor if you ask us.

What should I do?

It is your responsibility to take the exam or test and cooperate with the doctor examining you. If you cannot keep the appointment we made for you, let the state agency know right away. (The phone number and address are provided with the letter you receive notifying you about the exam or test.) If you do not let the state agency know that you cannot keep the appointment, it will make a decision based solely on the information already available in your case. This may result in a decision that you are not disabled.

What will the doctor do?

The doctor (or other medical person) who sees you will only conduct the exam or test and get specific information requested by the state agency. The doctor will not take part in deciding whether you are disabled, and he or she will not prescribe treatment or medication for you. The doctor will send a report of the exam or test to the state agency.

What will the state agency do?

The state agency will review the doctor's report, along with all of the other information in your case, and make a disability decision. We will send you a letter to tell you about the decision made by the state agency.

What if I do not agree with the decision?

If you do not agree with the decision, you have the right to appeal. Your letter will tell you how to appeal the decision.

My Evaluation of the 5 Min Psych Eval By MedPro done on 2/18/2016

Exhibit H - Crowder

The following is a summary report of a COMPLETE PSYCHIATRIC EVALUATION performed at this medical facility at the request of your department. The findings noted below are an assessment of a mental impairment affecting the above-captioned individual's functioning, not an assessment to be used for treatment purposes. Disclosure of the information in this report to the above-captioned individual may be medically detrimental to the individual's mental health.

This is false. This was a 5 min psych eval that never addressed why I applied for disability. It consisted of tests like asking who past presidents of the USA were, what's the capital of certain USA cities, asking me to count numbers backwards. But my PTSD's were never addressed.

REVIEW OF MEDICAL RECORDS:

All medical records were reviewed by this examiner.

Where did she get my medical records from? And what medical records did she review?

See 5B.pdf for all the medical records for my case. Per Adrienne the supervisor/manager Dr Mehrnoosh Rezapour wouldn't have any of the medical records as Patricia wouldn't have given them to her.

This is false based on what Adrienne her Supervisor/manager said over the phone, please see audio file evidence call-13-06-26-OUT-18182561000.mp3.

HISTORY OF PRESENT ILLNESS:

The claimant reports of experiencing pain because of medical problems that she is having as well as trauma from hate crimes and sexual abuse crimes. She presents really well; however, as interview went on she appeared to be very delusional, very paranoid and she talks about things that just were not making any sense. She appears to have some bizarre and some non-bizarre delusions.

This is false.

This was a 5 min psych eval and I only told this woman about my PTSD's cause in that 5 min psych eval, she never brought it up, I was under the impression that it would be addressed. I asked Patricia my case worker for a forensic psych (see letter to Patricia requesting a forensic psych- LetterSentToPatricia.pdf), instead I was given tests where I was asked to name past Presidents of the USA etc etc. The entire psych eval excluded my PTSDs, never addressed them, so after it was over, after the psych eval was over, I asked her why my PTSD's were never addressed and to do that, I had to explain to her what happened to me.

The statement: That I appear to have some bizarre and some non-bizarre delusions.

Is designed to cause me pain on purpose or intentional infliction of emotional distress and it's cause this psych was bias based on my religions, my skin color, my age, my gender etc etc.

PAST PSYCHIATRIC HISTORY:

The claimant was hospitalized in 1998 and in 2008. She states that she was falsely placed on a 5150 in 1998. In 2008, she was taken to the hospital due to insomnia. She states that when she was hospitalized, she was overdose on psychotropic medication. The staff and the LAPD raped her while she was unconscious and she was suing them and the FBI because of this. She is making some statements that appear to be of delusional in nature. She states that the psychotropic medication that she was on caused her to stop her menstrual cycles. This is a delusional statement that she is making.

This is false.

I'm in the process of going to Federal Court to sue the FBI not because of the crimes of 1998, I'm suing the FBI/DOJ/LAPD cause they refused to help me when I tried to report hate crimes from 2009-2013. The psych drugs I was injected with in 1998 without my consent and knowledge put my body into early menopause, it's a side effect of one of the drugs and it's a medical fact.

FAMILY PSYCHIATRIC HISTORY:

The family psychiatric history is significant an unspecified mental illness.

This is false. My family psychiatric history was never discussed, she asked no questions about my family psychiatric history. Unless she got that off the less then 40 page psych file from 1998. And if that's what she did, she's going off a false psych file.

PAST MEDICAL HISTORY:

The claimant's medical history is significant for two abortions at the age of 16 and 23.

Why is 2 abortions significant and I don't remember her ever asking me any questions or anything about me having abortions, unless she got it off my medical exam that I did at MedPro as well on 1/28/2016. I told the nurse/doctor of that medical exam my 2 abortions when I was asked about procedures I had in the past. Or she got that from my ScientologyForYou.info website as that's listed on there.

EMPLOYMENT: The claimant worked in internet industry since 1995. She has not had gainful employment since 2012. She states that her business was destroyed by hate crimes. She thinks that the neighbors that she had came in and stole things from her, bucked her computer, stole information and they destroyed her business. She currently borrows money from her mother to survive.

This is false.

I didn't think that my landlord and her accomplices broke into my apartment unit with their keys, I know they did, I also have evidence of those hate crimes.

THOUGHT CONTENT: The claimant exhibited no evidence of auditory or visual hallucinations, or illusions. She appeared to be presenting with bizarre and non-bizarre delusions. There were no obsessions, compulsions, or paranoia reported. She denied current suicidal or homicidal ideations, plan, or intent.

This is false.

My scene, this psych wrote that my scene, what really happened to me ie the hate crimes and sexual abuse as bizarre and non-bizarre delusions.

COGNITION, ORIENTATION AND MEMORY: The claimant was alert and oriented to person, place, time and situation. She was able to register 3 out of 3 items at 0 minutes and 2 out of 3 items at 5 minutes.

This is false.

The entire interview with this psych lasted 5 mins including all the tests.

CONCENTRATION: She was able to do serial sevens and serial threes. The claimant was able to spell the word "world" forward and backward.

This is false, I wasn't able to do serial sevens and I think cause of that, she switched gears and gave me serial threes. And she was annoyed by that as I was too slow in counting backwards in increments of 3s.

There was a series of words she wanted me to spell backwards and I wasn't able to do that either. Maybe the one word "world" I was but other words she gave me, I wasn't able to spell backwards.

INSIGHT AND JUDGMENT: She has common sense understandings. She responded appropriately to imaginary situations requiring social judgment and knowledge of the norms.

This is false.

There was no imaginary situations given to me requiring social judgement, there was no imaginary situations given to me.

DIAGNOSIS BY DSM-IV:

AXIS I: Delusional Disorder.

AXIS II: No diagnosis.

AXIS III: As per medical history.

AXIS IV: Psychosocial stressors: Financial problems and problems with primary support system.

AXIS V: Current GAF: 65.

This entire diagnosis is false.

This psych gave me a delusional disorder after telling her facts and reality. I was diagnosed based on my medical history, she had no medical records given to her per her supervisor Adrienne. My financial problems are from the hate crimes that destroyed my life including my source of income which she knew cause I told her.

MEDICAL SOURCE STATEMENT:

This is a 49-year-old female who presents with symptoms that are congruent with Delusional Disorder. She presents very well and she is highly intelligent; however, as interview moved forward her statements became more bizarre. She thinks that people she rented the apartment from were cyberstalking her. She states that they came in and they would steal things from her apartment. She also presents with some paranoia. She states that she sued the FBI because of this. She states that she was hospitalized in 1998 and in 2008 and when she went to the psychiatric hospital, she was fingerprinted. Prior to going to the hospital, she was unconscious and she thinks that the members of the church that she belongs raped her and video taped her. She also thinks that in the hospital the doctor, hospital staff, and LAPD raped her as well. She also believes that because of the psychotropic medications she has gone into a menopause at the very young age. The statement went on and on, they became more bizarre and bizarre as the interview was going forward. She states that her period stopped at 38 because of the psychotropic medications. The examiner believes that the diagnosis of Delusional Disorder is appropriate for her. She reports having some difficulty with concentration and memory. She reports having history of suicidal ideation, although denies current suicidal or homicidal ideation. She has gained some weight and reports difficulty with sleep.

The claimant exhibits mild difficulty interacting with the clinic staff or myself. She has moderate difficulty maintaining composure and even temperament. She has mild difficulties in maintaining social functioning. She has mild difficulties focusing and maintaining attention. She has no difficulties in concentration, persistence and pace. The level of personal independence is good. She is intellectually and psychologically capable of performing activities of daily living (ADLs).

Based on the objective findings presented during this interview, the claimant would have mild limitations performing simple and repetitive tasks and no limitations performing detailed and complex tasks. The claimant would have mild difficulties to be able to perform work activities on a consistent basis without special or additional supervision. The claimant would have moderate limitations completing a normal workday or workweek due to her mental condition. The claimant would have mild limitations accepting instructions from supervisors and interacting with coworkers and with the public. She would have moderate difficulties to be able to handle the usual stresses, changes and demands of gainful employment.

The claimant is currently not in treatment. It is highly recommended for the claimant to receive treatment in form of therapy as well as medication management as she appears to be highly delusional and paranoid at this time. If claimant was to have treatment the above would significantly improve.

The claimant does not have an alcohol or substance abuse related impairment and it does not contribute to any above limitations.

This is false.

I never stated that I was hospitalized in 1998 and 2008, the only place she could have gotten that information was from my ScientologyForYou.info website.

Another lie by this psych:

I never stated that I was fingerprinted, she got that off my ScientologyForYou.info website, my story coming forward.

Another lie by this psych:

That I think that Scientologists that held me hostage in my home raped me and video taped me as well as the Olive View staff and LAPD. This is true not something made up.

Another lie by this psych:

One of the psych drugs I was injected with put me into early menopause, it's a side effect of the drugs, it's a medical fact. She lied on this psych eval and wrote that I think that happened to me.

I explained to this psych after the 5 min psych eval was over cause my PTSDs were never addressed and that's the whole reason I was there as well as applying to Social Security Disability.

She wrote that I state that I sued the FBI, in the above (Medical Source Statement) but on the Past Psychiatric History

PAST PSYCHIATRIC HISTORY:

The claimant was hospitalized in 1998 and in 2008. She states that she was falsely placed on a 5150 in 1998. In 2008, she was taken to the hospital due to insomnia. She states that when she was hospitalized, she was overdose on psychotropic medication. The staff and the LAPD raped her while she was unconscious and she was suing them and the FBI because of this. She is making some statements that appear to be of delusional in nature. She states that the psychotropic medication that she was on caused her to stop her menstrual cycles. This is a delusional statement that she is making.

She wrote that I was suing the FBI. One paragraph she states that I sued the FBI and in another she states that I was suing the FBI.

She took the facts of my cases and gave me a delusional disorder. She took the reality of what occurred and created a mental disorder. Per her supervisor she did this on purpose to help me, she gave me keywords to trigger Social Security Disability so they would approve my application and I would receive disability.

I don't have a history of suicidal ideation. After the crimes of 1998, the 2 back to back sexual abuse incidents, losing my religion, getting threatened with murder by the LAPD for attempting to obtain the police report, I was in a lot of pain and mystery as to why I lost my religion and I cried for 3 years. At the end of that, I thought about suicide if that was a choice for me, for 1/2 second, one time. That does not give me a history of suicidal ideation. I explained this to the doctor, how I had 2 choices, I could lay down and die or get up and fight and I chose to get up and fight. That isn't a history of suicidal ideation.

My final summary of this psych eval.

My PTSDs were never addressed in this 5 min psych eval. I had a bunch of tests and that was it, she was like, we're done, you can go. So I tried to find out why was I there, what was the point of me coming in if they were never gonna address my PTSDs. I specifically asked for a forensic psych and was under the impression that I would see one. Patricia never responded to my letter nor called me to tell me it would not be a forensic psych and it would only be a 5 min psych eval. It was a waste of time for me to be there. So I filled her in on what occurred so she could comprehend the severity of my situation including giving her my ScientologyForYou.info website as proof, evidence of me coming forward about the crimes of 1998.

Instead of addressing my PTSDs in the psych eval, that was ignored, negated and instead I was given a false mental disorder. In addition to that, the tests I failed she wrote that I passed. This was false. She was completely dishonest in her written psych evaluation.

What her supervisor told me over the phone, that the reason she took the facts of my cases and twisted them and gave me a delusional disorder on purpose was to help me, she gave me keywords to trigger Social Security Disability, so they would approve my application and I would receive disability.

This is manipulative and if she really wanted to help me, she would have been honest and written down the truth, that I have PTSDs, more than one and listed out the facts of my cases.

It might be that she twisted the facts of my cases cause she's biased due to my religions, my skin color, my age, my gender etc etc.

The psych eval is also not valid, to do a real psych eval, it needs to be longer than 5 mins, I think the average is about 30-90 minutes and testing can take several hours. And that's just an average psych eval, not a forensic psych eval. See

print What is Psychological Testing?

Psychological tests offer a formal way to measure traits, feelings, beliefs and abilities that can lead to people's problems. Some tests assess the presence of certain conditions, such as depression, anxiety, anger control or susceptibility to stress. Other tests measure general well being and provide an overall picture of a person's personality. A typical psychological assessment includes an interview with a mental health practitioner and one or more formal psychological tests. The person may be able to complete some tests on his own; others may be completed with an examiner.

Upon a referral for psychological testing, one should recognize that the intent is to gain a deeper, more complete understanding of the problem than can be gained from a brief office visit. Such a referral does not mean that the problem is particularly serious, difficult to understand or complex. It just means that additional information is needed before designing the best approach to address the problem.

If a referral for testing is made, knowing why such a referral is being made is important to know. Becoming generally familiar with what to expect is also important. Often, an appointment for psychological testing requires several hours of time to complete questionnaires or engage in face-to-face paper and pencil testing.

Be an active consumer before, during and after psychological testing. To get started, ask any professional referring someone for a psychological assessment the following questions:

- Who will conduct the assessment?
- What is being measured?
- How long will testing take?
- What materials should the individual bring to the test? (e.g., glasses, other records)

- Who will have access to the results? (e.g., medical doctor, family, the court, teachers, research teams)
- How will the tests be taken? (e.g., verbal responses, paper and pencil, computer)
- How much will this cost? (Will insurance cover this?)

These are examples of only a few questions. It is important to ask any question that will increase comfort level with the test or testing procedure

FAQs About Psychological Testing

Who is qualified to perform psychological testing?

Licensed clinical psychologists, counseling psychologists and school psychologists are typically qualified to perform psychological assessments. The activity of these professionals is regulated by appropriate state statutes and licensing boards. It is wise to check to make sure the assessing professional is licensed. If in doubt, ask the professional to describe her qualifications to perform the evaluation.

How are the results of a psychological evaluation shared with the referring doctor or the patient?

After an evaluation, the results are scored and interpreted and a formal report is usually written. This report is then sent to the referring professional. Some psychologists may also have a discussion with the referring doctor to facilitate understanding of results. The referring doctor usually decides if, and how, the results will be communicated to the patient. In some cases, the referring doctor will ask the psychologist who performed the evaluation to discuss the results with the patient in a feedback session. In all cases, the patient is entitled to an explanation of results in language that he can understand.

Should the latest versions of psychological tests always be used in assessment?

Because the practice of psychological assessment has a long history, many of the tests in current use have gone through several revisions. In general, appropriate practice dictates that the most current versions of these tests should be used. In some cases, however, earlier versions may be used if the professional wants to compare current results with those obtained on an evaluation conducted much earlier in the person's life.

Is the patient allowed to see the results of her psychological assessment?

Every patient is entitled to a clear explanation of the results of psychological testing. Depending on the individual situation, it may be better simply to discuss the results rather than give the report. The doctor or mental health professional should be consulted about the results and about the best ways a patient can learn about them.

Who has access to assessment results?

In most cases, the results are sent to the referring doctor or agency requesting the evaluation. If an insurance company pays for the assessment cost, a review doctor or nurse working for the company also has a right to see the report. Otherwise, the report will be released to third parties only with the patient's written permission, and there are strict rules of confidentiality that are followed. Be aware that there may be some circumstances (e.g., court-ordered psychological evaluation) where the rules of confidentiality do not apply. It is wise to clarify who will have access to the results of the evaluation before beginning.

Psychological tests may be able to describe my current situation, but how good are they at predicting behavior?

Psychological and neuropsychological tests can predict general trends and behaviors, but are not designed to predict future actions, thoughts, feelings or behaviors. For example, the ability of psychological tests to predict violence or suicide is limited, though suspicion might be raised by specific test findings. Such predictions are improved by establishing an ongoing relationship with a professional over a longer period of time.

How accurate are the results of my assessment?

Most psychological and neuropsychological tests are reasonably accurate within a specified range. Each test is subject to measurement error, and the size of such errors is known through test development research. Thus, though a specific IQ or depression score is obtained, a "true" score should be thought of as falling close to the measured score. Many psychological assessments contain more than one measure of the same ability or personality trait. If the measures agree, more confidence can be placed in the results. A discussion of the issue of accuracy and stability of the test results with the professional who conducts the assessment is important.

How much do psychological assessments cost?

Psychologists and other mental health professionals usually charge on a per-hour basis for psychological and neuropsychological testing. Tests that do not require a lot of face-to-face effort on the part of the professional (e.g., questionnaires that a patient completes by herself) are less expensive than those the psychologist must administer. The per-hour fee varies widely depending upon the setting. It makes sense to determine beforehand what the estimated total cost of the evaluation (including report and whether feedback session is included) will be.

Will insurance pay for psychological assessment?

It depends. Some insurance policies have mental health benefits that will pay for a limited amount of psychological testing. Medical insurance policies may cover all or part of psychological testing if it can be shown to be "medically necessary." This is most commonly true for neuropsychological assessment of a patient who has cognitive problems related to a documented medical condition. Insurance reimbursement is generally better for physician-referred assessments. It is standard practice for the professional to obtain pre-authorization from the insurance company before the assessment begins. Prior to making an appointment for testing, call the insurance company and verify benefits for psychological or neuropsychological testing.

Neuropsychological Assessment

Just as the heart and lungs are critical in bringing oxygen to other internal organs, the brain is the key player in the nervous system. When disease affects the heart and lungs, the complex mechanisms that affect oxygen delivery break down, leading to damage in other organ systems. Similarly, when disease affects the brain, the functions normally controlled by the central nervous system, including thinking, emotions and behavior, begin to break down. Recent research has shown that many mental disorders, including anxiety, depression, schizophrenia, obsessive-compulsive disorder and certain personality disorders, as well as cognitive and behavioral impairments, may result from disturbances in brain functioning. As a result, techniques for evaluating brain function as it relates to these problems have gained wide use in the mental health field.

There are a number of ways to measure brain functioning. Imaging techniques like computed tomography (CT) or magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) scans look for structural abnormalities in the brain. Tests like an electroencephalogram (EEG) are designed to look for abnormalities in the electrical activity of the brain. Neuropsychological tests offer another alternative: in these tests, the brain is evaluated by putting it to work and measuring specific abilities like memory, language, perceptual ability, problem-solving and motor and sensory functions.

Neuropsychological tests involve paper/pencil and mechanical procedures, are painless, are not invasive and carry little if any risk to the patient. They normally involve direct, face-to-face work with a psychologist or her staff member. A comprehensive neuropsychological examination may take 6-8 hours and involves a broad range of tests and activities. A briefer, more selective evaluation may be performed, depending upon the individual case.

Neuropsychological tests are performed by psychologists and other mental health professionals who have specific educational and practical training. Not all psychologists are trained to perform neuropsychological tests, and it may be worthwhile to ensure that the assessing professional is properly trained to give and interpret neuropsychological tests. The clearest indication of proper training is board certification in clinical neuropsychology. When a referral is made, the professional or her staff should be contacted for specific instructions. Typically, the individual is encouraged to take customary medications, get a good night's rest the night before, and to bring glasses or contacts if vision correction is needed.

Unlike MRI or EEG procedures, which follow relatively standardized protocols, there are a variety of approaches to neuropsychological assessment. The neuropsychological examination usually begins with a clinical interview to enable the psychologist to become more familiar with the client's problems and to elicit any signs and symptoms of psychiatric or neurological illnesses. After the interview is completed, formal testing begins. Some neuropsychologists perform this testing themselves, while others use trained neuropsychological technicians. Both approaches are appropriate, since it is the psychologist who will ultimately be responsible for interpreting these test results. Some professionals use a standard battery approach in which the same group of tests is given to all patients regardless of the presenting problem. The clearest example of this approach is the Halstead-Reitan Neuropsychological Battery. This battery consists of a number of validated tests of brain function. Other professionals use a flexible battery of tests that are selected based on the patient's specific problem. For example, an elderly patient with suspected Alzheimer's disease might get a slightly different group of tests than a young patient after a closed head injury. While the Halstead-Reitan is the most widely used fixed battery of tests, most neuropsychologists use some version of the flexible battery approach. In general, it is a good idea to inquire about the psychologist's general approach and how the tests will be used in making diagnostic decisions.

Although the content of individual neuropsychological evaluations may differ, the evaluation typically includes measures of intellectual functioning and some assessment of emotional/personality functioning. In addition, several domains of cognitive (thinking) ability are assessed:

1. Memory: The client will be asked to learn and remember new information (short stories, word lists, geometric designs and faces) and to recall them later. Ability to recall information learned in the past may also be assessed.
2. Language: Ability to name objects, comprehend and follow directions, speak, read, write and repeat may be assessed in different ways.
3. Spatial and perceptual: Ability to analyze visual designs, assemble puzzles or appreciate spatial relationships may be measured with specific tests.
4. Attention and concentration: Ability to pay attention for short or long periods of time may be assessed using tests of mental arithmetic, speeded writing or other abilities. Ability to concentrate while distracted may also be assessed through tests requiring one to perform two tasks at once.
5. Problem-solving: Real-life or abstract problems to solve will be given. How these problems are analyzed and solved may be evaluated.

6. Motor and sensory abilities. One may be asked to perform some tasks in which fine motor coordination is assessed or to respond quickly to sensory input. Many neuropsychological examinations also contain measures that are designed to ensure that the patient is putting forth her best effort in performing the tasks.

Neuropsychological tests can be quite useful in defining cognitive and behavioral strengths and weaknesses as well as in diagnosis of specific medical conditions. If the results are abnormal, this does not necessarily mean that the person is cognitively impaired. Various emotional conditions (depression, anxiety, confusion and mental dullness) can impair neuropsychological test performance. Because of this, the neuropsychologist takes into account all reasonable explanations of the profile in interpreting the results. In most cases, the results will also lead to specific recommendations for treatment or management of the patient's problems.

A mental health assessment gives your doctor an overall picture of how well you feel emotionally and how well you are able to think, reason, and remember (cognitive functioning). Your doctor will ask you questions and examine you. You might answer some of the doctor's questions in writing. Your doctor will pay attention to how you look and your mood, behavior, thinking, reasoning, memory, and ability to express yourself. Your doctor will also ask questions about how you get along with other people, including your family and friends. Sometimes the assessment includes lab tests, such as blood or urine tests.

A mental health assessment may be done by your primary care doctor or by a psychiatrist, psychologist, or social worker.

A mental health assessment for a child is geared to the child's age and stage of development.

Why It Is Done

A mental health assessment is done to:

- Find out about and check on mental health problems, such as anxiety, depression, schizophrenia, Alzheimer's disease, and anorexia nervosa.
- Help tell the difference between mental and physical health problems.
- Evaluate a person who has been referred for mental health treatment because of problems at school, work, or home. For example, a mental health assessment may be used to find out if a child has learning disabilities or behavior disorders such as attention deficit hyperactivity disorder \(ADHD\), conduct disorder \(CD\), or obsessive-compulsive disorder \(OCD\).
- Check the mental health of a person who has been hospitalized or arrested for a crime, such as drunken driving or physical abuse.

How To Prepare

If you are having a mental health assessment because you have specific symptoms, you may be asked to keep a diary or journal for a few days before your appointment. For some assessments, you may be asked to bring a family member or friend with you, someone who can describe your symptoms from their view.

If your child is being checked for behavior problems, you may be asked to keep a diary or journal of how he or she acts for a couple of days. Your child's teacher may need to answer questions about how your child acts at school.

Many medicines can cause changes in your ability to think, reason, and remember. Be sure to tell your doctor about all the nonprescription and prescription medicines you take.

Talk with your doctor about any concerns you have regarding the need for the test, its risks, how it will be done, or what the results will mean. To help you understand the importance of this test, fill out the medical test information form (What is a PDF document?).

How It Is Done

Health professionals often do a brief mental health assessment during regular checkups. If you are having symptoms of a mental health problem, your doctor may do a more complete assessment or refer you to another doctor, such as a psychologist or psychiatrist.

A mental health assessment includes an interview with a doctor and may also involve a physical exam and written or verbal tests.

Interview

During the interview, your doctor pays attention to how you look, how you move, what type of mood you seem to be in, and how you behave. You will be asked to talk about your symptoms and complaints. Be as detailed as possible. If you have kept a diary or journal of your symptoms, share this with your doctor.

Your doctor may ask you questions to check how well you think, reason, and remember (your cognitive functioning). He or she may ask you questions to find out how you think, how you feel about life, and whether you are likely to commit suicide.

Physical exam

A mental health assessment may include a physical exam. Your doctor will review your past medical history, as well as that of your family members, and the medicines you currently take.

Your doctor may test your reflexes, balance, and senses, such as hearing, taste, sight, smell, and touch.

Lab tests

The mental health assessment sometimes includes lab tests on a blood or urine sample. If a nervous system problem is suspected, tests such as magnetic resonance imaging \(MRI\), electroencephalogram \(EEG\), or computed tomography \(CT\) may be done. Lab tests to detect other problems may include thyroid function tests, electrolyte levels, or toxicology screening (to look for drug or alcohol problems).

Written or verbal tests

A mental health assessment may include one or more verbal or written tests. You will be asked some questions and will either answer out loud or write your answer on a piece of paper. Your answers are then rated and scored by your doctor.

Written questionnaires generally contain 20 to 30 questions that can be answered quickly, often in a "yes" or "no" format. They usually don't take long to finish, and you can do them by yourself at a regular office visit.

Many mental health questionnaires are available. They look at:

- Specific problems. For example, for depression, the Hamilton Rating Scale for Depression, the Beck Depression Inventory, or the Geriatric Depression Scale can be used to evaluate your symptoms.
- How well you are able to think, reason, and remember (cognitive function). The Mini Mental State Examination can be used to check your cognitive function.
- How well you are able to carry out routine activities, such as eating, dressing, shopping, or banking.

Sometimes a more extensive mental health test, such as the Wechsler Adult Intelligence Scale, may be needed. The test may need to be given by a specialist such as a psychologist.

Children

How a child's mental health is assessed varies depending on the age of the child and the suspected problem. Young children may be asked to draw pictures to express their feelings, or they may be asked to look at pictures or images of common subjects and talk about how the pictures make them feel. Parents or teachers may be asked to answer questions about a child using a checklist.

How long does it take?

The time it takes for a mental health assessment varies depending on the reason for the assessment. An interview with written or verbal tests may last 30 to 90 minutes, or longer if several different tests are done. An in-depth test such as the Wechsler Adult Intelligence Scale may take 1 to 2 hours.

How It Feels

A mental health assessment is used to find out how you think and feel.

- If you are being checked for a problem, such as alcohol dependence, you may feel resentment, anger, or hostility and may not want to have the assessment.
- If you are being evaluated for a health condition, such as Alzheimer's disease, you may be afraid.
- Because some mental health problems are hard to diagnose, you may worry or become upset if your condition is not quickly or easily identified.

Lab tests do not usually cause much discomfort. A blood sample will be taken from a vein in your arm. An elastic band is wrapped around your upper arm and may feel tight. You may feel nothing at all from the needle, or you may feel a quick sting or pinch. Collecting a urine sample does not cause pain.

Risks

Your doctor may not be able to find the cause of your symptoms, because some mental health problems are hard to diagnose. Also, more than one mental health assessment or other tests may be needed to accurately diagnose your problem.

Results

A mental health assessment gives your doctor an overall picture of how well you feel emotionally and how well you are able to think, reason, and remember (cognitive functioning). Your doctor may discuss some results of the mental health assessment with you right after the assessment. Complete results may not be available for several days.

Many conditions can change the results of a mental health assessment. Your doctor will talk with you about how your results relate to your symptoms and past health.

A mental health assessment can help diagnose:

- Mental health problems, such as anxiety disorders, depression, schizophrenia, attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, conduct disorder, bipolar disorders, and eating disorders.
- Developmental problems, such as learning disabilities, intellectual disability, and autism.
- Substance abuse, including alcohol and drug abuse and dependence.
- Diseases of the nervous system, such as Alzheimer's disease, Huntington's disease, Parkinson's disease, and epilepsy.
- Other problems, such as thyroid disease and brain tumors.

What Affects the Test

You may not be able to have the test or the results may not be helpful if you:

- Are not able to cooperate with and trust your doctor.
- Are not willing to have a mental health assessment.
- Have physical or emotional problems that interfere with your ability to complete a written test. In most cases, other testing instruments and tools are used if this is a problem for you.

- Use some medicines, alcohol, or illegal drugs.
- Have trouble reading, writing, or understanding the English language.

What To Think About

- Some mental health problems can be hard to diagnose. You may need more than one mental health assessment and other tests to accurately diagnose your problem.
- What your family and friends see or think about your symptoms can sometimes help your doctor diagnose a mental health problem. Consider having a family member or friend come with you to your appointment.
- Contact your human resources department or local health department to find out what support services are available in your area.

She presents very well and she is highly intelligent; however, as interview moved forward her statements became more bizarre. She thinks that people she rented the apartment from were cyberstalking her. She states that they came in and they would steal things from her apartment. She also presents with some paranoia. She states that she sued the FBI because of this. She states that she was hospitalized in 1998 and in 2008 and when she went to the psychiatric hospital, she was fingerprinted. Prior to going to the hospital, she was unconscious and she thinks that the members of the church that she belongs raped her and video taped her. She also thinks that in the hospital the doctor, hospital staff, and LAPD raped her as well. She also believes that because of the psychotropic medications she has gone into a menopause at the very young age. The statement went on and on, they became more bizarre and bizarre as the interview was going forward. She states that her period stopped at 38 because of the psychotropic medications. The examiner believes that the diagnosis of Delusional Disorder is appropriate for her. She reports having some difficulty with concentration and memory. She reports having history of suicidal ideation, although denies current suicidal or homicidal ideation. She has gained some weight and reports difficulty with sleep.

The claimant exhibits mild difficulty interacting with the clinic staff or myself. She has moderate difficulty maintaining composure and even temperament. She has mild difficulties in maintaining social functioning. She has mild difficulties focusing and maintaining attention. She has no difficulties in concentration, persistence and pace. The level of personal independence is good. She is intellectually and psychologically capable of performing activities of daily living (ADLs).

Based on the objective findings presented during this interview, the claimant would have mild limitations performing simple and repetitive tasks and no limitations performing detailed and complex tasks. The claimant would have mild difficulties to be able to perform work activities on a consistent basis without special or additional supervision. The claimant would have moderate limitations completing a normal workday or workweek due to her mental condition. The claimant would have mild limitations accepting instructions from supervisors and interacting with coworkers and with the public. She would have moderate difficulties to be able to handle the usual stresses, changes and demands of gainful employment.

The claimant is currently not in treatment. It is highly recommended for the claimant to receive treatment in form of therapy as well as medication management as she appears to be highly delusional and paranoid at this time. If claimant was to have treatment the above would significantly improve.

The claimant does not have an alcohol or substance abuse related impairment and it does not contribute to any above limitations.

PROGNOSIS:

From a psychiatric standpoint, the claimant's prognosis is fair.

CAPABILITY:

Based on this presentation, the claimant does appear able to appropriately handle funds at this time.

Thank you for the opportunity to assist in this interesting consultation.

Sincerely,

“Dr. Arnold is the Chair of the Chemistry Department, but in class, he’s so down to earth that you feel he’s just a friend helping you along.”

“If I’d gone straight to CSUN after high school, it would have been really hard for me,” says Mehrnoosh Rezapour, originally from Tehran. “I didn’t speak any English at all when I came to SMC, but after two years here, I was very confident, and I knew I was well prepared for what I’d be facing next.” Though she’s moved on to CSUN, Mehrnoosh can’t quite bring herself to sever all ties with her beloved SMC.

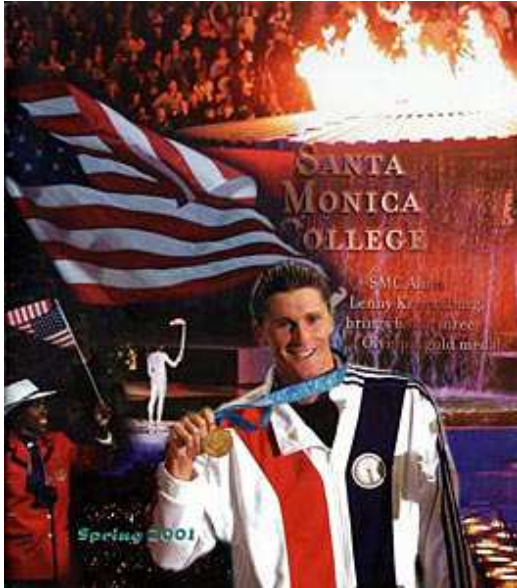

“I’m still working in the Counseling Center here, helping others, because I’ve been there. I’d never shared classes with guys before I came here and—in Iran—teachers are very strict. And because college is such a big change to so many students,” she continues, “I do all I can to help them get adjusted and find the right classes and teachers. There are so many ways to get involved here,” she continues. “There are clubs and volunteer work; just all kinds of things that you should learn to do before going into the real world!”

A future optometrist who emphasizes that “Dr. Arnold is one of the best teachers in science—and in life—that I’ve ever had,” Mehrnoosh states that giving to others is one of life’s most glowing opportunities. “I volunteer at the VA Hospital, feed the homeless, and did the AIDS Walk,” she states with real humility. “And I still work with a group—One Voice—that packages food for people at Christmas. It just feels good to be able to do the smallest thing for someone in need,” she says. “Even five minutes spent talking with an older person can make a very big difference in their day.”

My Evaluation of the 5 Min Internal Medicine Exam By MedPro done on 1/28/2016

The following is a summary report of an INTERNAL MEDICINE CONSULTATION performed at this medical facility at the request of your department.

This Internal Medicine Consultation took about 5 mins.

HISTORY OF PRESENT ILLNESS:

The claimant is a 49-year-old female with a history of bronchitis in January. She had a cough and chest wall pain. She received medications of antibiotics and inhaler. She is better now.

The claimant got rear-ended in 2010. She had a concussion and is complaining of low back pain. She is not on any pain medication.

The above is false. I don't have a history of bronchitis, I've never had bronchitis before in my entire life. I went to the emergency room in West Hills, CA and that's where they diagnosed me. That is true I was re ended in 2010 and I was never able to finish my physical therapy cause the insurance refused to pay out and I had to sue the person who re ended me and I won but the Judge refused to award me the money that was owed so that I could pay my physical therapy to finish my treatment.

EMPLOYMENT/SOCIAL HISTORY:

The claimant last worked in telemarketing up until 2013. She denies alcohol intake. She has been smoking cigarettes for eight years. She is divorced and lives with alone. The claimant drove herself to the clinic today.

This is false, I worked in telemarketing from Dec 2012 to July 2013, the way it's worded is manipulative, to make it
